PERRIN'S

GLOVES

A Few Facts About Kid Gloves.

THERE is no article in the Dry Goods trade more difficult to handle satisfactorily than Kid Gloves. Let the following facts be borne in mind:

Kid Skins and Lamb Skins

are not manufactured to order in a loom where the material, the weave, the weight, and the strength, can be controlled; they grow on animals, subject to change of weather, of food, and of other conditions such as cause the variety we see in nature.

The manufacturer has to depend on the honesty, ability, and care of his work-people in the selection and manipulation of the skins, and they, like all human beings, often err.

A nice kid glove is the most important part of a ladies' dress. We have made our KID GLOVE department very large and complete. We have stuck to well known and reliable makers and kept the same brand for years. We have Blacks, Tans, Browns and Greys in stock, both in Bretagne, Lacing and Stud fastenings. Every pair fully warranted when correct size is purchased.

PREPARING FOR A LONG FIGHT

Two Vessels Leave England to be Transferred to Japan on the High Seas.

Japanese Minister and Suite Attacked by Chinese Soldiers—Late War News.

Shanghai, Aug. 6, 10:45 a.m.—Letters from Col. Von Hanneckin, the former aide-de-camp to the Chinese Viceroy Li Hung Chang, confirm the report of the insubordination of the Chinese troops aboard the transport Kow Shung. It is believed the affidavits made by Capt. Galsworthy and chief officer of the Kow Shung were signed by compulsion. Capt. Galsworthy and companions were taken from Chirnith to Sasbo July 2nd and were released on July 4th. Quartermaster Evangelist is still in the hospital suffering from his wounds.

Denmark is demanding the release of Herr Muhlenstedt, a passenger on the despatch boat Tsa Kiang, captured by the Japanese July 25th.

While the Japanese minister accompanied by his suite and the Japanese consul were leaving Tientsin on August 3rd they were attacked by Chinese soldiers who seized their baggage and threatened personal violence. The viceroy sent a force of troops to the scene and suppressed the riot.

London, Aug. 6.—Two fast vessels left England on Saturday flying the Spanish flag. Another will follow in a few days. These three vessels are partly fitted out as cruisers and will be transferred on the high seas to the Japanese government. All munitions of war now loading for both China and Japan clear under Spanish and Portuguese flags.

The vice-president of the C. P. R. states that the newspaper reports to the effect that arms and articles of contraband of war are being carried by the C. P. R. is without foundation. Everybody connected with the company's steamship was cautioned to do nothing that might furnish ground for a complaint on the part of either of the contending nations.

London, Aug. 6.—The Canadian Pacific Railway company's steamship Empress of China ran aground on the bar at Shanghai on Saturday afternoon due to the change of the position of the red buoy at the mouth of the Woo Sung river. As the bar at the mouth of the river is of soft mud the vice-president of the company is of the opinion that no special harm has been done beyond the inconvenience resulting from a delay, while the cargo is being shifted.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Hon. Chas. Denby, U. S. minister to China, and dean of the diplomatic corps at Peking, is in Chicago en route to his home at Evansville, Ind. While declining to talk about the war he spoke very entertainingly of the Chinese people.

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—The steamer Gaelic sails to-morrow for China and Japan with a large freight list which comprises 15,000 barrels of flour, nearly 3,000 cans of assorted meats and about 1,000 barrels of beef and pork.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 6.—The Armour Packing company is in receipt of a cablegram from the Japanese government lately, asking the cost of half a million pounds of corned beef for the Japanese army. The company cabled its answer and pending a reply prepared to go into the business of supplying meat to the battling Asiatics on a big scale. The company has also opened negotiations with the Chinese legation at Washington.

New York, Aug. 6.—The Direct Cable company has issued the following notice to-day: "The Great Northern company notified us that the Siberian lines between Nertensk and Strenesk are interrupted. Messages for China will not be accepted, and for Japan only at the sender's risk. The eastern company's route is available.

INDEPENDENT CATHOLICS.

Baltimore Catholics Decide to Disregard the Commands of the Cardinal.

Baltimore, Aug. 6.—Three thousand members of the Holy Rosary Catholic church have decided to disregard in the future the commands of the cardinal and to establish an independent Catholic church. They propose to place the management in the hands of a committee and to engage their own pastor. Two of the members were sent to Cleveland to investigate the affairs of the independent church in that city, and they have returned with a glowing report of how it is conducted.

FREE FIGHT ENSUES.

Tragic Ending of a Social Gathering in Mexico.

City of Mexico, Aug. 6.—A tragic affair is reported from a mining camp in northwest Pasco. At a social gathering moscal, a violent liquor made from cactus leaves, had been drunk to excess and all were intoxicated. While the dance was in progress a general quarrel sprang up. A young girl who saw her lover in danger ran to his rescue. Just as she was about to fling her arms about his neck his antagonist plunged a dagger into her heart. The lover, rendered frantic at the sight, flew at the murderer and literally cut his heart out. Before the riot was quelled four lives had been lost.

CLEVELAND'S ANXIETY.

Three Detectives Detailed to Guard Mrs. Cleveland and the Children.

Washington, Aug. 6.—President Cleveland is afraid that harm may come to his wife and children, who are summering at Gray Gables. This is shown by his action in directing Secretary Carlisle to give instructions to the secret police bureau to have on duty at Grey Gables during the stay of his family at that place, three detectives in the employ of the government. Orders to this effect were issued three weeks ago and there are now loitering around Gray Gables three men who watch carefully every passer-by and who follow the babies and Mrs. Cleveland whenever they leave the family residence. Upon the inauguration of the "Industrial movement" some months ago, Mr. Cleveland requested Secretary Carlisle to detail three secret service detectives to guard the White House and he was so pleased with their behavior that he asked that the same men should be ordered to Gray Gables to guard Mrs. Cleveland and little Ruth and Esther. It is understood that the president is apprehensive that some one may attempt to kidnap one of his children and it is to prevent any such occurrence that the detectives have gone to Gray Gables.

The place of the landing of the expedition in Franz Josef land can only be determined when the ice conditions are known. All the members of the party are in good health and spirits and are confident of the success of their undertaking. The departure of the expedition was made the scene of a remarkable display of enthusiasm.

The furniture is now valued at $8,000, and the rent due amounts to $9,000.

EMPRESS OF CHINA ASHORE

Her Cargo Will Have to be Lightered Before She Can be Floated.

Captain Archibald was in command when she left Victoria. She did not have a very large cargo on account of the blockade along the line of the railway, but she was to have picked up more at Yokohama.

FIGHTING AT BLUEFIELDS.

Mosquito Indians Fighting Stubbornly—Desperate Struggle Anticipated.

New York, Aug. 6.—A Colon, Columbia, special says: "There has been fighting at the Bluefields Bluffs, it is reported, since yesterday noon, without any advantage having been gained by either side. Chief Clarence is leading the Mosquito Indians, who are aided by a number of Americans. Gen. Cabazas, the Nicaragua commissioner, expects reinforcements hourly. It is expected that the present struggle will be desperate. The Indians will fight stubbornly though it is thought that the Jamaicans may abandon them at a critical time. The Jamaicans are being influenced by the British minister, and Captain Stuart, of the British war ship. Another British war ship has been ordered to the Mosquito coast from the West Indian station. It is said that American and British marines are still on shore and will remain there to protect foreigners. Hundreds of Jamaicans left there yesterday for the coast to aid the Indians. The Mosquito commissioners have bought a quantity of arms which have been stored here nearly a year. The arms have been shipped to the coast on a chartered schooner.

SIGNS OF A SETTLEMENT.

Tariff Conferees Expect to Reach an Agreement on Wednesday.

Washington, Aug. 6.—An authoritive statement was made by one of the conferees on the tariff bill late last night, that a final conclusion will be reached on the points of difference between the two houses within seventy-two hours. This does not necessarily mean that the conferees will report an agreement. It may mean a disagreement, for representatives of the two houses have reached a point where all their diffferences will be compromised by Wednesday of this week at the latest or the fact will be demonstrated that they cannot agree at all. Yesterday's session of the conferees was the first Sunday they have devoted to their work since the bill was sent to conference. It was significant for that reason, inasmuch as several members of the conference have insisted in the past that they needed one day of the seven to rest and that under no circumstances would they spend even a part of Sunday on the bill.

LATE CABLE NEWS.

Paris, Aug. 6.—The trial of thirty anarchists began to-day at noon in the court of assizes with M. Dursys presiding and M. Bult conducting the prosecution. It will last a week.

Rome, Aug. 6.—Another batch of anarchists were arrested while holding a secret conference. It is intimated that the two thousand anarchists who were arrested by the police in the raids of the last two months will be deported. A group of fifty has already been sent.

A papal encyclical addressed to the Brazilian bishops will be published this evening. His holiness urges them to educate and enlighten the people with all the means at their command. Ignorance, he says, is the cause of the evils of the day. Bishops ought to establish schools wherever there are priests to direct them.

OTTAWA NEWS.

Contractor Feeny Will Lose Works Owing to Low Funds.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—George G. Crookshank, financial inspector of the Dominion, died to-day. He has been ill for years past. He was 38 years of age and for many years was Sir Leonard Tilley's private secretary.

Contractor Feeny is likely to be relieved of his contract on the Soulanges canal because he has too little money to keep his men paid up. W. J. Ponpore, an old favorite of the public works department, will probably be substituted.

MORE TROUBLE FOR CHINA.

French Explorer Murdered in Thibet—France Demands Redress.

Tientsin, Aug. 6.—Jules Dutreuil De Rings, an eminent French explorer, was murdered in Tebbit and his body thrown into a river. The French envoy to China has sent a protest to the government demanding the recovery and the return of the body and papers and also that the Chinese government make an apology for the occurrence and provide for proper compensation for the family of the murdered man.

American News.

Kansas City, Aug. 6.—The Gassard Investment company made an assignment to-day for the benefit of its creditors. The liabilities are stated to be $197,630 and assets $221,950.

CHINA SHORT OF COAL.

Other Nations Monopolize the Supply of Fuel Leaving China Short.

Supply of Amunition Also Inadequate—Official Reports of Recent Fights.

Shanghai, Aug. 5.—It is stated in well informed quarters that the strongest reason against China's fighting is that her fleet has no coal beyond what it has aboard the ships, and this would only give a week's steam at the outside.

The Japanese are plentifully supplyied and are only a few hours from their extensive coal fields at Kiusha. All the stocks of coal in the neighborhod have been bought up by the Japanese, British and Russian fleets, and China's supply is too far off to be of any use in this sudden emergency.

The supply of powder and ammunition on board the Chinese fleet is totally inadequate to the occasion, and would not last a week, nor are there any reserves less than four or five days off.

It is said that the Chinese officials are pleading that as this is the year of grace and the empress dowager's sixtieth birthday is at hand, there must be no fighting and that they will forgive the Japanese.

The Hague, Aug. 5.—Holland has notified China and Japan of her intention to remain neutral.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—Following is the official report of General Oshima, in command of the Japanese troops in the recent engagement in which the Chinese were defeated: "After severe fighting for five hours after 3 a.m., July 29, we won a decisive victory. The enemy's entrenchments at Chilbon were captured, and over 500 out of a total of 2,800 Chinese soldiers were killed or wounded. Our losses were five officers and seventy soldiers. The enemy fled towards Hongchow, perhaps intending to embark in Corean boats near Gunsan. We captured many flags, four cannons, many rifles and much ammunition. We occupy the enemy's headquarters."

London, Aug. 5.—The Times correspondent at Tientsin telegraphs: The preamble of the imperial edict just issued recites that the Chinese now claim in Corea merely the suzerainty which has existed hundreds of years. China has constantly assisted the vassal king, it says, to subdue rebellions. Recently she sent forces to Corea for this object. Japan, without any right, also sent troops, and refused to withdraw them. Moreover the Japanese sank a Chinese transport. Other powers have not hesitated to condemn Japan's action. The emperor places all military authorities under Li Hung Chang to protect the rights of the empire and order Japanese ships, wherever found, captured and destroyed.

In spite of the instructions which were sent to Admiral Sir E. R. Freemantle, in command of the China station, not to allow British ships to carry war material to either China or Japan, parties having good, bad or indifferent war material for sale are in negotiation with both Chinese and Japanese representatives. Both countries are known to be placing large orders. Japan expects to be able to dispatch a steamship full of war material from England for Japan next week. It is stated that furnishing munitions of war to Japan and China is a clear violation of the laws of neutrality.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—A strong denial is entered at the state department of the published story that the United States will enter into a treaty with European powers to forcibly occupy and keep open the treaty ports in China. It also denies that overtures to that effect have come from other countries. When war was only threatened the United States used its good offices to avert the evil. It did so to carry out the solemn obligation imposed by the treaty with Corea, made in 1882. It was under its terms that the president indicated to Japan that he should be pained should she inflict an unjust war upon Corea. That was as far as the United States could go. It is said at the state department that the attitude towards the belligerents will be patterned upon the course taken at Rio. It will side neither with Japan nor China, but, as was indicated by Mr. Bayard, ambassador to Great Britain, the attitude of the United States will be one of "benevolent neutrality." While we may act with other powers in protecting commerce, we will not be a party to a joint treaty or combination the object of which is forcible interference in China or Japan. The entire United States fleet in Asiatic waters now consists of the Baltimore and Monocacy. About a week ago orders were sent to Behring Sea to have the Concord and Petrel sent over to join the station, and that is all that has been done in that direction.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Emperor William on his return had a long conference with Chancellor Caprivi, and the chancellor is the guest of his majesty on board the Hohenzollern. One of the results of the conference was the dispatch of German warships to the far east. The German trade with Corea is small when compared with that of England, and there is no prospect of other than a neutral attitude. The sympathy of the people here is rather with the Chinese.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL SEALING.

Schooner Kate and Ann Returns to Astoria with 608 Skins.

Portland, Aug. 4.—The first case to come up under the provisions of the findings of the Paris tribunal of arbitration to settle the Behring Sea controversy between the United States and Great Britain was brought to light at Astoria by the arrival there last Thursday of the American schooner Kate and Ann from Behring Sea, having on board 608 sealskins, part of which were caught during the closed season in the waters governed by the provisions of the tribunal's findings and included in the proclamation of the president issued in pursuance of the same. The captain claims that the sealskins were caught in part prior to May, 1894, and part since that date. Collector Page being in doubt as to the status of the case under the provisions of the proclamation of President Cleveland dated April 6, 1894, and the prohibitions contained in it, has asked for instructions in the matter from the United States district attorney. The Kate and Ann was in Alaskan waters at the time the proclamation was promulgated, and her captain was in ignorance of all its provisions and prohibitions until after her arrival in port at Astoria. If the facts are as set out in Collector Page's letter the vessel will likely be seized and libelled.

The Kate and Ann brings confirmation of the reported loss of the schooners Mattie Turner, Unga and Retriever. They were caught in a typhoon April 24, and all went down with their crews. After the storm the schooner Herman picked up two hundred casks of oil, which comprised part of the cargo of the lost vessels. "Typhoon Charley," captain of the schooner Theresa, is reported as having had serious trouble with his crew, who were mutinous. The Kate and Ann's catch amounted to 608 seals.

GERMANY'S METROPOLIS.

Emperor William Reflects From His Trip to the North.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Emperor William returned from his cruise in Norway waters looking bronzed and improved in health. He enjoyed the trip immensely, and in accordance with all reports, there was a very lively time on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern. The master of amusements of the emperor was again Baron Heubezen, a young army officer and art connoisseur, who endears himself to the emperor by his charming manners, vivacious talk and rare social talents, among which cards and sleight-of-hand are not the least.

Halle has been en fete this week, in celebration of the bi-centenary of the university of that place. The streets have been decorated with flags, floral arches and festoons of flowers in profusion. Over 130 foreign professors were present at the celebration, including delegates from most of the countries of Europe and America. The strange robes, hoods and picturesque costumes of the different student corps, the elaborate decorations and fine weather combined to form a brilliant scene. Banquets and receptions followed each other in quick succession. From Norway Emperor William wrote a letter of congratulation to the authorities of the university, in which he dilated upon the epoch as marking the progress of modern theology, philosophy and classical philology. This letter has been much discussed for its political bearings, which are decidedly of a liberal tendency. Prince Albrecht, who represented Emperor William at the celebration, announced that his majesty presented the university with his portrait and 36,000 marks. America was represented at the Halle fetes by Prof. A. V. W. Jackson, the noted Orientalist; delegates from Columbia, Yale and Harvard, Dr. Seiss, of Allentown, Pa., and other noted men who call Halle their alma mater.

The trade returns for the first six months of 1894 do not look encouraging when compared with those of the same period of 1893. There is a decrease in exports of 96,000,000 marks and an increase in imports of 151,000,000 marks, 6 and 8 per cent. respectively of the total. The increase in exports is mainly in breadstuffs, and the decrease in exports is mainly in textile fabrics. Germany has suffered heavily through the financial collapse in Greece. One well-known capitalist was forced to sell his splendid villa.

P. D. Armour, of Chicago, is here on business and pleasure combined. He wants to examine into the meat condition of Germany and the Scandinavian countries for himself.

Mrs. Calvin S. Brice is here for her health.

Herren Wermuth and Richter are now enjoying a holiday. The former is in Norway.

Several newspapers state that eighty corpses were illegitimately obtained and used in the school of musketry at Spandau in testing the new firearms. The Reichstanzeiger semi-officially denies the report, and adds that what was fired at were preparations wadded in linen which belonged to the anatomical institute.

A chess match was commenced on Thursday at the Nuremburg Chess club between Tarasch and Walbodt, of Berlin. The latter is only 19 years old, but he is reckoned to be almost the equal Lasker. He has played in America and Havana, where Lasker declined to meet him. At Nuremburg Walbrodt lost the first game through playing carelessly.

The Emperor William's first interview with the chancellor after returning from the north concerned the recent cabinet discussions, which were reported at length by the chancellor. They impressed his majesty with the necessity of acting at once against the revolutionists. Chancellor von Caprivi did not help the emperor in this decision; in fact he is known to have held back from it. He advised the emperor to wait until the subject should be discussed in the federal council and the opinions of the federated governments could be obtained. He agreed that the imperial government could lose nothing by thus informing itself and might be saved the chagrin of committing itself to a bill that could not be passed. At first the emperor seemed inclined to accept the chancellor's advice; then he changed his opinion suddenly and directed Caprivi to prepare drafts of repressive laws to be submitted to the reichstag and Prussian landtag. These bills he told the chancellor should be drawn to amend the existing laws, as to political meetings, seditious publications and public utterances or printed matter calculated to rouse or incite to disorder.

The Nord Deutsche Algemeine Zeitung says to-day: "We do not doubt that both the upper and the lower house of the landtag will readily pass such measures, while the reichstag will become the arena of a fierce battle with the event quite uncertain for the government."

Miscellany.

In a lecture at the British Royal institution Sir Howard Grubb has recently discussed the great telescopes of the future. The main point of his new proposal is to mount a colossal instrument so that it practically floats on a fluid support. In this way even the greatest reflectors and refractors could be properly mounted. They would, it is believed, move with a smoothness and steadiness not attainable with supports ordinarily employed. By this method Sir Howard Grubb proposes to render the large telescope more suitably adapted for photographing the heavens. In the ordinary visual use of the telescope slight irregularities in the movement of the instrument are merely inconvenient, but for the accurate demands of photography absolute precision in movement is required. When this is wanting the result of a photograph is to represent each star as a streak instead of a round sharp dot, which the properly exposed plate should produce.—Philadelphia Record.

ELECTRIC VEHICLES.

Development of Electricity as a Traction Force.

The development of electricity as a traction force has been going on in Great Britain along entirely different lines from those followed on this side of the ocean, and withing the past few weeks some highly interesting results, novel to our experiences here, have been attained. Great Britain has seemingly been very backward in adopting electricity for traction purposes. There are probably less than a dozen electric railroad lines in operation in the kingdom. The most prominent and successful electric railway is the Liverpool elevated railway, running a distance of six miles along the docks. There are a few electric street car lines.

The British authorities and people will have none of the overhead trolley system—cheap, and easy of operation, but decidedly dangerous, and the successful and safe underground trolley system has not yet been devised. In the circumstances British electrical engineers have devoted themselves to the problem of devising an effective and cheap method of electric traction for all manner of ordinary vehicles on the streets of the cities and the turnpikes of the country, and electric cabs and carriages, omnibuses and trucks, have been the aim of British electricians. Perhaps the fact that there are some 22,000 miles of excellent turnpike roads in Great Britain, and that farmers are largely using steam engines for hauling their traffic over the roads has something to do with the direction of their investigations.

A few weeks ago an electric parcel van was run experimentally through the busiest of London's streets, and an electric omnibus made similar trial trips about the same time. So far as the operation of the vehicles was concerned the experiments were a success. The designers claim equal success for the financial end of the experiment. Three companies have been formed to operate vehicles of this charactr and other vehicles with the same methods of traction, and it is declared by the experts that the era of electric traction for all purposes, on common roads, has definitely set in.

The experiments looking to this end have been in progress twelve years or more. An electric tricycle was invented and run for a brief period by Professor Ayrton about 1885, and in 1886 an electric cab, the first electric vehicle of the kind carrying its own energy in storage form, was invented and operated by Radcliffe Ward, who is the inventor of the latest success, the electric omnibus. The cab was run in Brighton for some months and demonstrated the possibilities of this method of traction, but not its economic success. Later an electric dog cart, and then an electric wagonette for the Sultan of Turkey was built. But these vehicles only demonstrated the power of electricity to move vehicles on common roads, and left the profitable operation of such vehicles still a problem.

The motive power for all such vehicles on common roads is, of course, derived from storage batteries carried in the vehicles themselves, and the weight of these batteries and the cost of charging and recharging them has always been the crux of the situation. It is believed by the inventors of at least two types of electric road machines, and by a large number of business men and capitalists who have formed companies to develop and operate them, that the difficulty has now been solved.

Both the electrical omnibus and the electrical parcel delivery van have been running in the streets of London for several weeks. The vehicles have attracted a great deal of attention. They roll along steadily and easily, and thread their way among the mass of cabs, omnibuses, and trucks with a nicety that excites general admiration. They are under perfect control, and run at different speeds as the circumstances warrant. In a clear stretch of street they go at a pace of ten miles an hour, though this is not the limit of their speed by any means. The horses seem not to mind the electrical vehicles at all. It would take a good deal to startle a London cab or 'bus horse, anyhow.

The 'bus can carry 26 passengers, ten on each side of the interior and six on a cross seat on the roof. The two storage batteries which furnish the power are carried under each seat, and the motor is in a box slung between the rear wheels to which the power is applied. The batteries weigh about 4800 pounds each. The 'bus itself weighs about two and a quarter tons, and when fully loaded with passengers it is calculated to weigh, in all, over six tons.

In the estimates which the inventor has prepared for the company formed to operate a line of these omnibuses, it is stated that the cost of operation would be less than six cents per car per mile. The inventor says his omnibus could easily make an average of 580 miles per week, the figures being given for a special route over which it is proposed to run the vehicles in London.

It is pointed out that with electrical vehicles there will be less wear and tear on the roadways, for all the pounding of horses' hoofs will be done away with. The weight of the electrical vehicles will be great, but the tires of the wheels will be broad. Wood or other noiseless pavements will become universal, and the tremendous volume of street noise which now afflicts the public will be almost wholly abated. Pneumatic tires for electrical vehicles are a probability. Rubber tires have been tried on the electrical omnibus, but they were too expensive. Makers of pneumatic tires, however, say they can make pneumatic tires that will outwear solid rubber and be satisfactorily economical. A third company which has been formed to operate electrical omnibuses, cabs and parcel vans, is now constructing an electrical omnibus which is to have pneumatic tires. Twenty-six omnibuses of the Ward type are to be built forthwith and operated in London, and the Clubbe Parcel Van company is also planning extensive operations.

THE ADEN BAZAAR.

A Miscellaneous Collection of People and Wares.

What strange people are to be seen there! Indians gorgeous in scarlet and gold and tinsel; Somalis in the plain white robes, their hair left long and hanging like the cords of a Russian pope on either side of their heads, and often their raven locks are dyed a strang brickdust red color by a clay they smear over them; Arabs, too, with long black silky curls bursting from under their small turbans, nude fellows, except for their loincloth of native dyed indigo cotton, the color of which clings to their copper skins with strange effect; creeping, crawling Jews; negroes from Zanzibar; Persians and Arabs from Bagdad; Parsees and Greeks. Then is the time, when the heat of day is over, to seek some cafe at the corner of a street, and watch the people pass.

Here at a table four Somali warriors, glorious in their very blackness, are playing dominoes with the manners of bourgeios on the boulevards, there a group of Arabs are chatting over a hubble-bubble pipe, the mouthpiece of which they pass to one another, over cups of the husks of the coffee berry, their favorite beverage. Great strings of camels pass and repass in the street. Ricketty cabs rattle along, the driver calling to the crowd to make way; and throughout the whole permeates Tommy Atkins, sublime in his self-consciousness, and a very good fellow withal. Aye, the bazaars of an evening are a sight to be seen—a collection of strange peoples, only to be equalled on the bridge between Stamboul and Galata at Constantinople.—A Journey Through the Yemen. W. B. Harris.

TREES AS HISTORIANS.

They Tell of the Dry and Wet Seasons a Century Ago.

It has been found that the rings of growth visible in the trunks of trees have a far more interesting story to tell than has usually been supposed. Everybody knows that they indicate the number of years that the tree has lived; but J. Keuchler, of Texas, has recently made experiments and observations that seem to show that trees carry in their trunks a record of the weather conditions that have prevailed during the successive years of their growth.

Several trees, each more than 130 years old, were felled, and the order and relative width of the rings of growth in their trunks were found to agree exactly.

This fact proved that all the trees had experienced the same stimulation in certain years, and the same retardation in other years. Assuming that the most rapid growth had occurred in wet years and the least rapid growth in dry years, it was concluded that out of the 134 years covered by the life of the trees 90 had been wet, 6 extremely wet, 18 wet, 17 average as to the supply of moisture, 19 dry, 8 very dry, and 6 extremely dry.

But when the records of rainfall, running back as far as 1840, were consulted, it was found that they did not at all agree with the record of the trees. Still it could not be denied that the rings in the trunks told a true story of the weather influences which had affected the trees in successive years.

The conclusion was therefore reached that the record of the rings contained more than a mere index of the annual rainfall; that it showed what the characters of the season had been as to sunshine, temperature, evaporation, regularity or irregularity of the supply of moisture, and the like; in short, that the trees contained, indelibly printed on their trunks, more than a hundred years of nature's history, a history which we might completely decipher if we could but look upon the face of nature from a tree's point of view.—New York Sunday Advertiser.

THE PANTHEON.

Facts Concerning Late President Carnot's Place of Burial.

The Pantheon, in which the remains of the late President Carnot are entombed, was originally the church of St. Genevieve. Its religious uses were abolished and its name changed during the revolution of 1789, restored by Louis XVIII., and again secularized by the presidential decree of May 24, 1885.

Clovis, the founder of the French morarchy (467-511), built a church on it near the spot SS. Peter and Paul, which afterwards became a celebrated abbey, where Ste. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris, was buried in 512. The present edifice was suggested to Louis XV. by his mistress, Mme. de Pomadour, and the first stone was laid by that sweet-scented king, September 6, 1764. The church was intended to be a reproduction on a small scale of St. Peter's at Rome, and the cost of construction was met by the proceeds of a royal lottery. The plan is a Greek cross, 302 feet in length by 255 transverse. The portico, approached by eleven steps, occupying the entire breadth, presents a front of six fluted Corinthian columns, 60 feet in height by 6 in diameter, which, with sixteen internal ones, support a triangular pediment 129 feet wide by 22 feet high. This pediment contains an elaborate sculpture in relief, representing France dispensing honors to some of her greatest men. The dome is 60 feet in diameter, and from the pavement to its top is 268 feet. The interior of the church is very beautiful in its design and decorations, some of the frescoes being the work of famous artists, and especially fine.

That part to the purposes of which the building is now dedicated is beneath, where are located a large number of vaults constructed of immense stones laid together without mortar or cement of any kind. Among the notable people lodged here are Soufflot, the architect of the church; Degrange, the mathematician; Marshal Lannes, duke of Montebello; Carnot, Napoleon's minister of war and grandfather of the dead president. Jean Paul Marat, whom Charlotte Corday righteously slew in 1793, had a place here a few years ago, and then his corpse was dragged out and thrown into a neighboring sewer. Mirabeau was interred here with great pomp in 1781, but his dust was afterwards removed—no one knows where. Voltaire, interred the same year, shared the same fate. His heart, it seems, had been given to his niece, Mme. Denis, who bequeathed it to a friend. When, in 1864, it was proposed to place it with the rest of the body, the sarcophagus in the Pantheon was opened—and found empty.

The decree of 1885, mentioned above, was issued shortly after the decease of Victor Hugo, and reads as follows:

Article 1.—The Pantheon restored to its legal and original destination. The remains of great men who have merited national gratitude will be deposited there.

Article 2.—The above provisions are aplicable to citizens to whom a law shall have decreed a national funeral. A decree of the president of the republic shall order the transportation of their remains to the Pantheon.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MACDONALD AS A YACHTSMAN.

The Uniform Was All Right, but the Seamanship Was Not.

When little Macdonald became the owner of a small sailing boat he ordered a suit of serge and a yachtsman's cap with gold braid. He didn't know much about the sea or seamanship, and was even known as what is called a "bad" sailor, but he was determined to give his friends an object lesson in his newly acquired aquatic skill. The boat lay at Dunoon, and Macdonald had taken a house for a couple of months in that popular watering place. The former possessor of the craft showed Macdonald how to manage the sails and gear, but during the course of his nautical tuition Mac's legs had an awkward habit of becoming entangled with the ropes, and several times he exhibited a tendency to lean over the side of the boat in a manner which was as ridiculous as it was surprising. His friends strongly advised him to re-insure his life for a substantial sum. He did so, and took the precaution besides of buying large quantities of those papers and periodicals which contained free insurances. To such an extent was this kind of literature purchased that an irreverent boat hirer one day asked Macdonald if he intended starting a news agency on the Clyde. The questioner had certainly some ground for his query, as papers fluttered at stem and stern, and in half a gale of wind a goodly portion of this unsecured cargo would be sent merrily flying over the waves.

At length Macdonald deemed himself sufficiently enough versed in seamanship to give a few of his bosom friends a cruise. Three of them responded to the invitation. The craft was well victualled for the day's sail, but the weather, unfortunately, proved to be the reverse of favorable. It would have been unseamanlike on the part of Mac to have proposed a postponement, and the sails were hoisted, but the Nancy refused to proceed. This action on the part of the gallant boat was not at all extraordinary, as, after a little time had elapsed, somebody discovered that the necessary job of weighing the anchor had been left undone. This was done with some difficulty, and the Nancy spread her sails, but refused to answer her helm. Macdonald tried different methods, and at last succeeded in bringing her under the bows of another yacht, from which she refused to part company for fully fifteen minutes, the bowsprit of the latter showing a very strong attachment for the Nancy's riggig. When a little more progress had been made Macdonald found himself right in the track of a crowded steamer. The bell was rung, whistles blown, but the Nancy remained deaf to all warnings. The steamer had to give way, the captain in the meantime relieving his feelings in a series of phrases which were certainly not of the most polite order.

By this time the wind had increased in force, and a sudden gust sent the Nancy nearly on her beam ends. Macdonald became excited.

"Lower the anchor," he shouted. "There's something wrong with the centreboard," and the anchor was once again pitched over the side. His friends implored him to put them ashore, but after discussion and refreshments it was decided to remain where they were and try fishing. The sport, if it might be so called, was poor. The fish refused to bite. Macdonald's friends became disgusted, and so the anchor was again weighed, and a run, this time successful, made for the pier. The Nancy is now for sale. Macdonald said she wasn't much of a boat after all. His friends entertain a different opinion.—Quiz.

THE SCHOOL GYMNASIUM.

Through the kindly consideration of the late Mr. J. D. Pemberton, the central school grounds are now improved by the addition of a fine new gymnasium building. Unfortunately, though, there is no apparatus, and no money to purchase an equipment, as the building has absorbed all the bequest. In this emergency the board looks for assistance to the public spirit and generosity of wealthy citizens who can appreciate the advantages of a well equipped gymnasium connected with the public schools. It is to be hoped that the confidence of the trustees will not be found misplaced, and that donations will shortly enable them to furnish the apparatus required. The building is of no use as it stands, but well furnished it would doubtless prove of great utility in the education of the pupils' physical powers, which is quite as important as their mental improvement. Here is a chance for some generous citizen to confer a real benefit on the rising generation.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND LAW.

It is rather significant that Sir William Whiteway and fourteen of his colleagues and supporters should have been unseated and disqualified in Newfoundland on account of doings that are paralleled at every Dominion election by ministers and members of the party now dominant. British Columbians also know that if the Newfoundland laws were in force here serious inroads would be made on the Davie government's majority in the new house; for at the late election public improvement were held up as bribes on behalf of more than one of the governmen candidates. Not only that, but works were actually begun in certain places on the eve of the election only to be suspended or terminated immediately after polling day. Those are precisely the offences for which the ex-premier of Newfoundland and his legislative following have suffered punishment. The Newfoundland law would work similar havoc in the ranks of the Dominion Conservative party. Everybody remembers instances of the readiness of the Dominion government and its supporters to resort to the public works argument. It is only a short time since Sir John Thompson very plainly told a Trent valley canal deputation that if the government went ahead with the canal work it would expect the support of the people along the canal. Everybody knows that the Tay canal, the Trent canal, certain Intercolonial railway branches and various other works have been constructed simply and solely for the purpose of buying votes. The Dominion corruptionists do much worse than the Newfoundlanders when they proceed to levy on public contractors for campaign funds; that is a depth of depravity which Whiteway and his friends do not seem to have reached. If Caron and the nefarious gang who work with them had to encounter the Newfoundland election law, strictly enforced, they would speedily lose their power. In Britain public opinion is pure enough and strong enough to prevent any resort to bribery by public works; the politician who there attempted it would find himself generally execrated as a public nuisance. Unfortunately public opinion in Canada has not the same texture, and it is therefore a pity that we cannot have a law such as Newfoundland's. Here again the trouble lies in the fact that the majority would not allow the passage of such a law, because it would remove their most powerful political weapon.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Laurier intends to reach Winnipeg on his western tour on September 3, and a date a week or so later will probably find him in Victoria. Liberals of British Columbia have plenty of time to arrange for a suitable welcome.

Said Dalton McCarthy in a speech to his constituents: "I was, as you all know, a National Policy man, and now I tell you I am for as much free trade as we can get. We would be all the better if we could have it as it is in England. But that is impossible, so I say that what this country needs now is to get down to a tariff revenue". The future of Canada, he said, was in agriculture; some manufacturing there would of course, be. He would like to see manufacture, but he did not believe that 90 per cent. of the people should be taxed for the support of the 10 per cent. In conclusion he said it looked as though parliament was about to be dissolved. In the expiring hours of the session the frugal government, with a deficit in the treasury of a million and a half of dollars, and the public employes not paid their salaries, after giving $750,000 a year to a fast line of steamers and throwing off $80,000 a year of taxes on wines, gave $4,000,000 of the people's money in bonuses to railways to go into wildcat speculation. Such lavish expenditure generally heralded an election.

Five miles from Langenburg, Assa., lived a German family named Burgart. On Monday last the parents started for the hay field leaving three small children in the house. Shortly afterwards smoke was seen ascending from the building. Burgart's brother hurried to the spot and found the house on fire. He pushed the children out through the window, the eldest boy being badly burned about the face and neck. He then tried to push a box containing clothes for the family out through the window, but overcome with the heat and smoke he fell, and before help arrived he perished in the flames. His bones burned and blackened and a burnt shoe upon his left foot are all that remain to tell the story of his heroic deed and sacrifice.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Nanaimo, Aug. 6.—Mr. J. Hunter assures the citizens that he intends putting in new machinery for the electric works without further delay. He regrets that he consented to delay the work in order to aid the promoters of the electric tramway scheme. He expects to have the works again in order at the end of six weeks. He further intimated that he will probably submit a reasonable proposition to construct and operate a tramway between this city and Wellington.

SHE ESTABLISHED A RECORD

The Viva Comes From Hakodate in 26 Days—Four Days Less From Land to Land.

Brought a Valuable Cargo—Shooting Scrape on the Alton—Collision Avoided.

The sealing schooner Viva, Captain Anderson, arrived here from Hakodate at one o'clock yesterday morning, after a remarkably quick passage. She left Hakodate on July 9, and was 26 days from wharf to wharf. She lost some time in the straits outside of Hakodate, and was only 22 days from land to land. She had heavy southerly winds all the way across, and was simply on the go all the time. The weather was thick and foggy all the way, and in the whole 4,000 miles only two unsatisfactory observations were taken. Notwithstanding that, Captain Anderson brought up right at the mouth of the straits. At Race Rocks on Saturday night, in plain sight of home, the whole voyage came very near being spoiled by an accident. Captain Anderson himself was on deck, when suddenly out of the gloom a big collier, supposed to be the Costa Rica, hove in sight. She was heading straight for the schooner, and the schooner could apparently do little to avoid her. Captain Anderson "sung out," as the sailor men say, but nobody heard him. The watch up on the forecastle must have been asleep. The schooner's captain put his helm over as far as he could, ordered the men to be called and looked for a soft spot in the water to jump at. The schooner answered well, and the collier plunged by with about ten feet to spare. Had they struck the schooner would have been cut in two. The watch on the collier saw the schooner just as the collier was abreast of her, and several of the crew peered over the side. Captain Anderson, in language eloquent, forcible and expressive, told them what he thought of them and of colliers in general.

The Viva came home with 23,205 sealskins, representing about a coal quarter of a million (millions are always well packed away in salt in her hold). It was made up of her own catch of 1438 skins and the catches up to the date of her departure of the schooners Umbrina, Mary Ellen, Brenda, Sadie Turpel, Oscar and Hattie, Agnes Macdonald, W. A. Earle, Penelope, City of San Diego, Arietes, Rosie Olsen, Libbie, May Belle, Fawn, Otto and Aurora.

Shortly after leaving Hakodate the Viva spoke the schooner Alton of San Francisco. The latter had serious trouble on board, culminating in the shooting of one of the men by the captain while in Hakodate. The sailor was drunk, and came aft on the quarter deck and made some threats at the captain. The latter drew a revolver and shot him through the right arm. The wound was a serious and painful one. The man was landed and will be treated in the hospital at Hakodate. The captain is to be tried when the vessel reaches San Francisco, for which point she was heading then. She had a catch of 600 skins. The Viva also spoke the schooner Theresa of San Francisco, bound for the Copper islands. The latter had a total catch of 800 skins. The Viva was hampered this season by a series of minor accidents. She lost a boat overboard five hundred miles off the coast, lost another on the other side and did no sealing at all in April, having to return to Hakodate to land her cook and mate, who were taken sick while out at sea. However, as she receives 25 cents a skin as freight charges on her cargo, she may be said to have had a fairly good season of it. She left here on January 8th, and was gone about seven months. She docked to-day at Rithet's wharf. Her sailing performance is to-day the sole topic of discussion along the front.

—Charles E. Kelly and Miss Lola Van Syckle were united in marriage here yesterday, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Thomas Baldwin at the latter's residence, 32 Discovery street. Mr. Kelly is a prominent druggist of Seattle, and the bride was known to the theatrical world as Miss Lois Morrison. She is a very attractive young lady, and popular among all who know her. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home at Seattle.

—Hereafter free programmes will be furnished at the Oak Bay band concerts. Leader Finn will also introduce the system of "request numbers," as adopted by eastern bands, namely: In a programme of eight numbers two numbers will be left blank or vacant, and in these numbers any piece of music that may be requested will be played, provided the piece requested is in the bandmaster's possession. Requests should be made verbally or in writing the day previous to the concert to insure its rendition.

—Mayor Teague and Chairman Hayward, of the school board, on Saturday formally accepted the Pemberton gymnasium from the contractor. The building was designed by A. C. Ewart, and is very neat and substantial in appearance. It is the intention of the trustees to re-arrange the old gymnasium and use the two as soon as some means is devised for obtaining the necessary apparatus. At present there is no apparatus, the whole of the Pemberton bequest having been expended on the building. The board also purposes to obtain the services of a competent instructor as soon as the gymnasium is furnished.

—Dr. George Duncan leaves to-night on the Empress of India for Jaapn. He has secured a long leave of absence as medical health officer of the city and will enter the Japanese army as a surgeon. He is to report to the surgeon-general of Japan, and will very likely be assigned to duty in one of the large hospitals where the soldiers and sailors injured in the service will be treated. The experience will be invaluabel for Dr. Duncan and his fellow practitioners regard him as very fortunate. Of the younger physicians in the city he is one of the brightest. In his absence Dr. John Duncan will assume the duties of medical health officer and attend to his private practice.

—The Comox News is responsible for the following bear story: "Saturday night as Mr. and Mrs. Walter were returning home from church service at Courtenay, and when near Duncan's clearing, they saw distinctly a large black bear in the road ahead of them. He was travelling towards them, and Mrs. Walter not caring to make any new acquaintances just then, especially of the Bruin family, turned back towards Courtenay. Her husband endeavored to reassure her, declaring that there was no danger and that Bruin was not coming that way—was not then in sight. "Yes, he is," rejoined the now frightened lady, "I can hear his chains!" So they continued towards the village until Evengelist King was met. The story of the bear was related to him. He listened until it was finished, and as it would be necessary to pass Walter's to reach his own place, he turned toward them, and with a smile born of heaven, exclaimed, "Put your trust in the Lord and fear no danger." The now augmented party turned back and met with no further incident."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A. J. Rowbotham Shoots Himself in the Head, But is Not Badly ounded.

Business Cares Drove Him to the Deed—Often Threatened to Kill Himself.

A. J. Rowbotham, the well known grocer, made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide last evening. Some time after 3.30 o'clock he went to his store on Yates street, took his revolver from its place behind the counter, went to the store room upstairs and sent a bullet into the right sides of his head. By a miracle almost the bullet did not go in over about an inch and a half, and the wound inflicted was only a slight one. Rowbotham lay upon the floor bleeding until 10 o'clock, when he was found, very weak from loss of blood and virtually unconscious from the effects of the shot. Business and financial troubles drove him to the deed. He had a friend from Nanaimo, J. E. Halton, in the city yesterday, and they spent the morning in a game of chess. Mr. Halton returned home on the 3 o'clock train, and Mr. Rowbotham went to the station to see him off. He was seen at the depot by a number of people, and nothing unusual was noted in his appearance or conversation. He must have returned to the store directly from the train, for he was not seen again. He failed to go home to dinner, a circumstance which excited suspicion. Later in the evening Charles Smith, one of the clerks, went to the store, but could not get in. After a time an entrance was effected by Mr. Smith and Robert Dudgeon, and Rowbotham was found upstairs. He was lying on the floor with the revolver, a large sized old weapon, at his side and a pool of blood under him. They bathed his head and gave him some brandy, thus reviving him. He recognized them, but did not speak. Dr. Frank Hall was called, and later Dr. Ernest Hall was sent for. The patient was removed to St. Jospeh's hospital at 11.30 o'clock, and placed on the operating table. An examination showed that the bullet entered just under the right ear. It cut a hole throught the chamber of that organ, cut through the flesh and twice encountered the bones, being turned and nearly cut in two the first time it struck. One of the surgeons located it with his finger, and it was easily removed. The wound was bathed and temporarily dressed. The skin was badly powder burned, and the revolver must have been held right against the head. Rowbotham rested well during the night, and this morning was quite bright. He spoke bitterly of what the doctors had done to save him, and declared that he fully intended to kill himself; that he wanted to die, and that he would yet succeed. He was visited by the surgeons again this afternoon and the wound was carefully dressed. There is but one thing to fear as to the result of the wound. Some of the main arteries were cut by the ball, and there is danger that the flesh now holding them closed will slough off and a hemorrhage which will prove fatal ensue. Despite his desire to the contrary, every effort will be made to save the life that he desires to terminate.

Mr. Rowbotham is a man of middle age, has a wife and child and has resided here for many years. He is very near sighted, a physical defect which caused him considerable worry. He has always taken a queer view of life, being an enthusiast in the advanced school of free thought. Time and again he had told his friends that he would some day use that old revolver on himself. Not a week ago he told a business acquaintance that he wished he could go to sleep some night and never awake. He has no fear of death at all, and when his business became involved and he was harassed by the troubles of finances he sought it as the avenue of relief. Still, with all he had said on the subject, his determined effort to keep his word was a surprise to his friends. He has always been a hard worker, and that his business should have become involved is greatly regretted.

This afternoon Mr. Rowbotham made an assignment of his business to Thomas Earle, M. P., as trustee. This step was rendered imperative by his being taken away from the business. Late this afternoon he was reported to be doing well by the doctors.

OUR GOLD MINING.

The Cyanide Process Giving Very Encouraging Results.

A great deal of success in treating gold ores, refractory and otherwise, has been accomplished at the experimental works of the Cassel Gold Extracting Co., at Vancouver, under the superintendence of W. Pellew Harvey, F. C. S. Several lots of rock up to one ton in weight have been treated and so far the average cost of extraction has only amounted to $1.80 per ton and the percentage extracted stands at 93 per cent. average. This is encouraging surely, and when such results are derived our mining men owning low grade ledges should wake up and look into the matter and have experiments made. Mr. Harvey is too well and favorably known as a chemist to require any personal mention from us, and the Cassel Co. is no doubt better known in Africa, India, Australia and other big mining countries than any other.

THE RIOTS OF 1877.

They Were Much Worse than the Recent Disturbances.

By way of showing that the industrial outbreak of 1877 was worse than that which lately occurred in the States, the Springfield Republican gives the following summary narrative:

The strike of 1877 began on July 14th on the Baltimore & Ohio railway, and within three days the militia of West Virginia was in the field, while within four days the United States regulars had gone to their assistance. On the 20th the Maryland militia was called out, and in a riot in the streets of Baltimore the soldiers killed nine and wounded twenty or thirty more. On the same day the strike burst upon Pittsburg, where the most terrible scenes were to be enacted, in comparison with which nothing in our history can be mentioned. The mob there defied all authority, and on the 21st the sixth division of the Pennsylvania militia arrived to maintain order.

Marching through the streets the soldiers were stoned by the mob, and their answering volleys killed sixteen and wounded many more. The mob then broke into the gunshops, and some five thousand returned fully armed to do battle with the raw and ill trained militia. The troops retreated to a railroad round house, and there the mob, now grown to twenty thousand strong, attacked them. Three or four cannons had been obtained, and these the mob trained on the round house. Unable to dislodge the soldiers, whose answering shots were occasionally fatal, the mob ran blazing oil cars up against the round house in the endeavor to set it on fire. These tactics were tried in various ways, the accompaniment being a saturnalia of fire and destruction of railroad property wherever it could be found. Finally the militia were forced to retreat from their furnace like fortress, and, escaping across the Allegheny river, under fire of the rioters, they disbanded in wretched humiliation. The mob was now supreme in Pittsburg, depots were burned, together with two thousand freight cars and one hundred and twenty-five locomotives, and thousands of the inhabitants gave way to the mad spirit of plunder. Between eight million and ten million dollars worth of property belonging to the railway companies was destroyed. The entire militia of Pennsylvania and four hundred regulars under General Hancock were at last on the scene, but too late to be of much service.

The outbreak at Pittsburg was so extreme that the troubles of that entire month have come to be known in a general way as the Pittsburg riots; yet, as a matter of fact, the field of disturbance spread over the entire country from New York to San Francisco. It is impossible to trace the strikes in chronological order or in detail, but mention of some important events will suffice to indicate the range of the convulsion. In collisions between the militia and mobs at Buffalo and Reading twelve rioters were killed and forty-three were seriously wounded. In Chicago, on July 26th, there was an encounter between the police and the mob more sanguinary than any like encounter during the last few days, in which nineteen were killed and many wounded. In St. Louis a great mob surrounded the quarters of the militia and police and dared them to fire. In San Francisco a huge mob took possession of the city, and on the same day of the Chicago riot a bloody battle took place between the rioters and the recognized vigilants under ex-Governor Coleman, to whose courage was due the preservation of Nob Hill from fire and plunder. In New York a meeting was held to express sympathy with the strikers everywhere, but there was no violent outbreak in that city. At Columbus, Ohio, a mob forcibly closed all mills and industries, and in many other places through the field of disturbance all industry came to a standstill. Fully one hundred thousand men were on strike, and at Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, as well as at eastern cities, there was a complete embargo on the railways. Some six thousand or seven thousand miles of road were at one time or another in the hands of the strikers, and to name the companies "tied up" would require much space in this paper.

When it was all over—and it passed with the suddenness of a tornado—the militia of nearly a dozen states had been in the field in co-operation with the United States army; between fifty and seventy-five rioters had been killed and fully a hundred wounded in conflict with the soldiers, while the destruction of property all over the country has never been calculated.

Following the railroad strike came a miners' strike, in which forty thousand laid down their picks, but this was devoid of violence or bloodshed, although several were killed in a riot at Scranton.

In comparison with the great industrial rebellion of 1877 that of the present year, as far as developed, seems almost like boys' play.

LANGER'S INVENTION.

A New Smoke-Consuming Apparatus for Locomotives.

A few invited guests witnessed yesterday the trial of a new smoke-consuming apparatus, which, according to all appearances, is destined to cause radical changes in the operation of railways. The inventor of the apparatus, who was introduced to them, is the mechanical engineer of the Northwest Railway, Theodor Langer. The management of the Northwest Railway kindly placed at his disposal the special train which conveyed the guests from Vienna to Znaim, a distance of 100 kilometers, on yesterday's trial trip.

The director of the railway company, Court Councillor Dr. Eger, received the invited guests at the Northwest railway station. At nine o'clock in the morning all these gentlemen entered the cars. The two cars immediately behind the locomotive were open, and the occupants were able, consequently, to observe closely the working of the new apparatus. It was shown that the locomotive, even when running at a high rate of speed—at times as high as seventy kilometers an hour—emitted only clear water steam, but no smoke, sparks or cinders. Although usually a person in an open rail-way car is covered with cinders and dirt from the locomotive, the gentlemen who rode on the special train from Vienna to Znaim yesterday, not excepting the ones who rode on the locomotive, found at the end of the journey that their coats, linen and hands were as clean as when they started. On the train there [illegible] had the enjoyable experience of moving about and getting up and down without soiling his hands. In the closed carriage the window was kept open without exposing anybody to cinders or smoke. All the guests were loud in their praise of the inventor. Of the smoke-consuming apparatus the following explanation was given:

After years of observation Mr. Langer succeeded in explaining with theoretical correctness the complicated processes of heat power. In harmony with this law he placed outside the boiler an automatic device which supplies the fire with just enough air to make possible the consumption of the smoke and gas. In the space over the fire a steam veil operates in such a manner that the steam and gas are whirled together and thoroughly mixed. The gas, which has thus been burned, is then forced against the boiler, and its heat-giving power is utilized to the best possibility. The great advantages of this process are plain. Besides effecting a great saving of heating materials—estimated at 10 to 25 per cent—it enables a railway company to do away with the disagreeable and unhealthy smoke, cinders and gas which are emitted by locomotives of the usual type, for the locomotive provided with the Langer smoke-consuming device gives but only the pure steam necessary to operate them. * * * This device has been applied on thirty-five locomotives (most of them in the express train service) of the Northwest railway, and after trials extending over two years has been found in every way satisfactory. More locomotives are provided with it by the Northwest company almost every month. Other companies which have tested the invention report equally good results.—Vienna Fremdenblatt.

OUIDA'S ECCENTRICITIES.

She Made a Call on Lord Salisbury and How It Resulted.

New York Sun: Ouida and Jimmie Whistler have caused the Londoners to feel overwhelming spasms of fear at the near approach of literary persons. Perhaps this accounts in some measure for the great celebrity enjoyed by literary people in the big English metropolis. What Mr. Whistler writes and says attracts more attention than the things he paints, while the stories of the manner in which Ouida has snubbed and berated the people who have tried to be civil to her are innumerable.

The last time she was in London she was wandering along St. James' place, where a big yellow house up a side street caught her eye. She walked up and looked at it thoughtfully. She was a queer figure of a small, shrunken woman of advanced years, with a seam-wrinkled face, old-fashioned wringlets hanging in front of her ears, an odd little bonnet cocked askew on her head, hoopskirts and old-fashioned congress gaiters.

She leaned forward on her big umbrella and gazed at the house for a long while. Finally she beckoned a policeman to her and asked who lived there. The policeman touched his cap and remarked that it was the town house of the prime minister. Thereupon Ouida walked up to the door, rang the bell, and told the old flunky who opened the door to announce to Lady Salisbury that she was there. The flunky looked her carefully over and sent a second footman up stairs with the message while he kept his eye on the odd-looking visitor.

Lady Salisbury, like most English women, had adored Ouida in her school days, and she came down stairs and set about the work of making the novelist welcome. She was cut short in her speech, however, by a terse inquiry from her visitor concerning the prime minister.

"If he is at home," said the novelist, "I should be greatly obliged if you will bring him down and I will take a look at him, and as I am going away from London shortly I shall probably never have another opportunity of seeing him unless you bring him in now."

She seemed to regard the Marquis of Salisbury as a sort of prize pig to be exhibited, and she talked about him in such a curious fashion that Lady Salisbury went back to his study and brought in that exalted personage. Ouida looked at him through her spectacles with the same air of examining a prize exhibit that was [illegible] and finally ended by expressing her approval of the premier.

She was invited to come and dine in an informal way two nights later, and the prime minister, who had been enormously tickled by the interview, invited a number of lofty personages to his house that night. The dinner hour came, but no Ouida. The guests sat down and talked about the novelist, but not a word was heard from her, and it was not discovered until the following day that she had read a speech of the Marquis of Salisbury on the morning of the day of the dinner and it had displeased her so much, and she had decided to have nothing to do with the Salisburys thereafter.

At the present time Ouida is in a pitiable condition. Her house and all her personal property in Italy have been sold to pay her debts, and she is almost destitute of money. Her eccentricities have become more and more pronounced, and it is said that the people who are brought into contact with her find it almost impossible to retain their composure under the sharp and biting comments which she makes upon them.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

PREHISTORIC FOOTPRINTS.

Peculiar Marks Found on a Block in a Texas Canyon.

In the Palo Duro canyon, Texas, the hacking away of a large piece of alluvial earth has recently revealed a singular trace of prehistoric life. This consists of the unmistakable trail of some large animal going over the rocks, followed by another, probably of the human kind, or at any rate of a gigantic specimen of the ape. That it is the former is the more likely, as the monkey tribe, except in the smallest families, is not found on this continent or in South America. The first animal, judging from the marks it left on the then impressionable rock, was of the reptile family, for its tail, soft underneath though weighted with scales sufficiently to make it heavy enough to drag an inch and a half deep, made a broad, smooth trench, while the claws by which it assisted itself were of the true alligator type, webbed between. These claws were nearly five inches long, and were evidently intended to aid the creature in climbing on land, as its webbed membrane served it for swimming in water.

But more curious are the marks of the animal which pursued it. These are of two hands, nearly three times the size of the ordinary man's hand, and those of two active feet, both hands and feet possessing five members, though all of equal length except the thumb. This, while shorter, is yet longer in proportion by half an inch than is found in man of to-day. It was also of unusual strength, sinking much deeper than the rest of the hind feet wherever it rested [illegible]. The nails are curved and very powerful, those of the feet being particularly so, grasping the rock firmly.

Another singular thing in connection with the remains is the position of the marks. They are carved in a rock standing nearly perpendicular to the bed of the ancient river, 900 feet below, and which must once have been as wide as the Mississippi, and of a current sufficiently strong to have cut its way through these granite rocks. This position of the remains would indicate that the reptile swarming up from the stream was pursued by the other animal, and probably killed on land. This part of the country is pronounced by geologists to be among the most ancient formations of the continent.

The rock on which these marks are to be found is about fifty feet below the surface of the earth, and are only to be reached by one swinging over the side of the precipice. They were discovered by an amateur geologist of this locality, who, noting the fall of the soil, went down in the hopes of adding to the rich antediluvian spoils this singular chasm has yielded. Plaster casts have been taken of the prints and will be forwarded to the state museum at Austin. The marks are plainly visible from a ledge some fifty feet down the side of the canyon, and from here have been viewed by all in this section interested in such matters.

BERNHARDT'S PATRIOTISM.

Death in Preference to Sailing on a German Vessel.

"One of the most exciting adventures," said Mr. Strakosh, "was an incident which happened when I was managing the South American tour of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. We were on the British steamer Cotopaxi—and a good, stout vessel she was—but somehow or other as we were passing through the Straits of Magellan we ran into a sand bank. The steamer drew 18 feet of water, and had unfortunately entered the straits at low water. Everyone believed that we were shipwrecked, that our engagement at Chile would never be fulfilled, and that we were doomed to stay where we were for three weeks—for you must know it is only usual for steamers of this line to pass there every three weeks. Sarah was distracted. She tore her hair, she beat her breast in her inimitable manner, and she used the—well, classical—language for which she is noted. There we were, and there was no prospect of relief. This was about 9 o'clock in the morning. The scene can better be imagined than described. The ladies were in tears and frightened out of their boots, and even the men [illegible] comfortable. The assurance of the captain that all would be well were of no avail, and everybody was in despair. At last, about noon, the smoke of an approaching steamer was seen in the distance. Everybody's hopes revived. Aid was at hand and we would be rescued from our unpleasant position. Time went by and the steamer drew near. As she approached the Cotopaxi hoisted signals of distress and she bore down upon us. But as soon as her flag was recognizable patriotism got the better of fear. The vessel flew the German colors. Sarah did not hesitate a moment. Rushing to the captain, a bluff English sailor, she flopped on her knees before him and implored him for the love of God and France not to turn her over to the tender mercies of her enemies. She would rather stay shipwrecked all her life, abandon her profession and lose all her hopes of artistic and financial success than set foot upon the deck of a German ship. Surprised at her change of tone, the captain consented and told the German captain that his passengers did not need assistance, and the Teuton sailed away. Rushing down to her cabin, Mme. Bernhardt brought out a silken tri-color which had been presented to her by some admirer, and as the German sailed away she hoisted the flag of France and waved it triumphantly at the parting foe. About 7 p.m. the tide rose and we floated and reached our destination in safety.—Washington Post.

LYTTON.

Kamloops Sentinel.

Mr. C. C. Crockett, president of the Fraser River Dredging company, has started work here. He has twenty men engaged building a scow, which is to be 130 feet long and 30 feet wide. It will be self-propelled. The machinery is to be taken from the steamer Delaware. The company belongs to Duluth. Mr. Crockett expects to be ready for work about the last of October. When finished this dredging machine will cost over $50,000. This is the biggest thing we have seen in dredging.

Mr. C. H. Underwood has started work on his claim at Thompson's Siding. The Bootanie company shuts down work to-day. They have not yet decided when work will be resumed. Charles Lual has struck a rich prospect on one of J. M. Buxton's claims. The Van Winkle is booming under the able superintendency of Mr. Brophy.

The Globe hotel has changed hands; it is now under the able management of Samuel Adler of Victoria.

Ninety in the shade is the best we are getting the last three days.

VERNON.

On Sunday last the dwelling house on Sir Arthur Stepney's ranch (formerly Lumby's) was burned with all its contents. Origin of fire uncertain.

Mr. Ellis has a number of men building the new mill north of the jam factory, near Vernon station.

The agricultural society is having exhibition buildings erected on its new grounds at Vernon. Mr. John Hutchison, for the gate receipts and the refreshment stands at five annual shows, is now erecting a hall, 70x130, with an addition 30x30, (as a T), in front. He also puts up certain sheds and an eight foot board fence around five acres, and at the end of five years he engages to hand over those sheds free to the society. In reply to a request of the society the governor-general replies that he will endeavor to be present at and open the exhibition on Oct. 9th.

KAMLOOPS.

The contract has been let to J. M. Archibald for the new Huson Bay company's building, and work will start in a day or two. The site chosen is the two vacant lots on Victoria street between Mr. Ridley's and Dr. Clarke's houses, making it the most easterly general store of the city. In all respects the new building will be in keeping with the high standing of the company and the large business done in Kamloops, in which it was the pioneer dealer by very many years.

The completion of track laying on the N. & S. railway as far as Slocan lake took Mr. R. Marpole, superintendent of the Pacific division, up that far last Saturday. He went up to New Denver and visited some of the mines of the locality. The railway, he expects, will not be completed through to its destination and have a regular train service before the end of six weeks or two months, but construction trains are passing along the as far as completed at frequent intervals, carrying passengers. Mr. Marpole states that 1800 tons of ore is awaiting shipment, and will begin moving within a fortnight coming out by way of Revelstoke over the new railway.

REVELSTOKE.

Revelstoke Mail.

A. H. Holditch writes that there has recently been discovered an enormous vein of almost pure arsenic in Big Bend, and its owners hope to make it extremely profitable.

A. Beaton arrived down this morning with $1500 in coarse gold and nuggets, which was taken out of the Beaton-Vandall placer mine on French creek by three men in fifteen days.

Charles Molson, who has been trapping and placer mining for the last fifteen months in Big Bend, came down on Monday, bringing a lot of skins, chiefly marten, beaver and wolverine. The pelts were taken during the winter, and are all in prime condition. C. B. Hume & Co. bought the lot, which was valued at over $500.

Last night the houses on Douglas street had narrow escapes, and on Tuesday night the big fires, which for several weeks past have been marching townward through the bush north of the track, had reached within twenty yards of the Revelstoke brewery. The engine was taken up, and plenty of willing hands kept the brewery roofs and walls wet with pails of water. The wind fortunately was not high, and the myriads of sparks which at one time enveloped the buildings did no damage. The engine was kept on the spot until 11.30 p.m., but Mr. Allen, the brewer, with some helpers, did not go to bed. The fire is still burning, but it is believed all danger to the town is over.

THOMPSON'S

The new wagon road to Trout lake is being rapidly pushed forward. One gang is now working within three miles of Trout Lake City. Mr. Ross, the superintendent, reports that there is considerable heavy work to be done between the big canyon and Trout Lake City.

Dan McDonald and partner, old time Slocan prospectors, were shown some rich silver dry ore float that had been picked up by a prospector several years ago north of Trout lake. Dan and his partner found the float from the directions given, and after twelve days' hard work succeeded in finding the lead, and made two locations. They describe it as a good strong ledge, and judging from the specimens shown at Thompson's they have a good thing.

Parties here report seeing big boulders of galena which have broken loose from the Rob Roy, which belongs to Mr. Hugh Ross, and have rolled down the hill. One of the miners north of Trout lake has a chimney built of galena, and when he goes to boil his beans and fry his bacon the bullion rolls down among the ashes.

The water in Lardeau creek is still too high for placer mining, but most of those who have made locations are sanguine of finding the yellow dross when the water goes down, which will be in about two weeks, and are getting ready to commence operations when the time arrives.

FORT STEELE.

Golden Era.

Prospctors still come in from the American side, and recently a good prospect has been found up Wild Horse creek. A ledge of free milling gold cropping out for nearly four thousand feet, of which a rough assay gives a return of about $2,000 to the ton.

Mr. Laird is putting down a shaft near the Victoria gulch. This will test the deep ground. The work is in charge of Mr. Robert Jennings, and could not be in better hands.

PORT HAMMOND.

Port Hammond, Aug. 4.—Haying is nearly completed in this neighborhood, the crop being an exceptionally heavy one. On the Howison estate some sixty tons have been safely housed.

General satisfaction is expressed here on so many of Mr. Murray's pupils having passed the teachers' examination; it speaks volumes for Mr. Murray's management of the school at Maple Ridge.

A party consisting of Messrs. R. L. Codd, W. G. Clapcott, Arthur Codd and W. G. Newton left here on Wednesday morning for Lillooet river for trout fishing. They were successful in securing some very fine fish.

Your correspondent has had his attention called to a letter in the Columbian signed "Sub" in which the writer says the Fraser river "rose at least eight feet higher a number of years ago than it did during 1894." We would be glad if the writer would give the date of such an occurrence, as in the memory of the oldest inhabitant such a flood as that which happened in 1894, was never known before. The author of the article referred to is "a little out" in his calculations.

FAT AND LEAN.

Nature Regulates Fatness and Slimness With an Iron Rule.

Fatness and slimness come by nature, and are, therefore, often impossible of remedy; for it is of no use, and it is utter folly besides, to fight against one's constitution. You can effect that constitution to a certain extent, but beyond that extent (which won't please either the too fat or the too slim folks) you can only do harm, defeat the very object you try for, and worst of all, throw yourself into ill health. It stands to reason that if a man or woman comes of a big boned, stoutly built stock, he or she may reasonably be expected to inherit the tendency to corpulency. Conversely, suppose a man is born of a family stock which is notable for its thinness and slimness, it may be, and generally is, worse than folly for him to expect, by any process of feeding or otherwise, to become a stout and well-favored person.

So let us realize this big fact at once—that we have to face the question of our constitution, first of all, and, as sensible people, to see and discover whether our fatness or our thinness is part and parcel of our natural build. Rest assured, if we are fat by nature it is useless for us to attempt by diet or otherwise to reduce our bodies to very slim proportions. Many a man and woman have paid the penalty of such rashness by inducing disease through their outrageous efforts to thwart nature. Let us be sensible then, about this "fatness" question, and see clearly where, as rational beings, we stand. It is possible to keep even a fat body within its own limits by reasonable care in diet, just as it may be possible to fatten up a thin person (within limits again) by a regulated course of food. Whatever you may do in the way of thinning or fattening you can never safely or (what is more to the purpose) permanently attain your end by the use of drugs. If there is any cure for fatness at all, be sure it is to be found in the food, and in the food alone.

INDIAN PILGRIMAGES.

The Motley Crowd Who Surround the Pilgrim Bands.

It is curious to note how kerosene and matches are used in the remotest Indian village. In order to provide him with these and several hundred other things, which I cannot now remember, a perfect army of grain sellers, leather workers, water carriers, jewelers, and, in short, men of every trade that has the remotest hope of making anything out of the pilgrims, all crowd to the spot. Round the edge of the vast betrogeneous mass there hangs a long fringe of beggars. At the head of this fringe are the Brahmins—those lofty ones who obtain charity as a right. Next come those who beg merely because that is easier than working, and less dangerous than stealing. After them comes a host of decrepit, blind, diseased and deformed folk, whose dreadful sores and pitiful malformations earn them as good or a better living than the able-bodied and industrious are able to obtain. Last of all come the lepers, and these, indeed, are pitiable objects. Often have I dropped a coin into the hand that was merely a stump, all the fingers having been decayed away.

All these are willingly fed and supported by the pilgrims and the traders. For India is a country where charity is carried far over the verge of imbecility; to give to the lazy loafer or the fat Brahmin is quite as meritorious as to help the sick, but industrious artisan, or to add a trifling comfort to cheer the wretched leper or helpless cripple. No questions are asked; you need but squt by the roadside in some frequented place, spread a filthy cloth in front of you, and hold out a hand to passers-by, to insure a maintenance for life. Charity is not given to relieve distress in others, but to smooth the donor's path to heaven.—The Nineteenth Century.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

VICTORIA WINS AGAIN.

Splendid Exhibition of the National Game at Caledonia Park on Saturday.

Difference That a Good Referee Makes in a Game—Other Sporting Events.

Close on two thousand people, including those on the trees and on the fences surrounding the Caledonian grounds, witnessed the championship lacrosse match on Saturday between Victoria and New Westminster, which the home team won by three goals to two. The game was by far the fastest that has been seen here this season. Both teams were in good condition, and as a consequence the checking was very close, but it was by no means rough. Victoria undoubtedly missed Morton, his substitue, Jackson, being outclassed by the company he was compelled to keep, although he on several occasions made good plays. Westminster was also weakened on account of the absence of Lewis, but his substitute, McQuarrie, played a hard and steady game. On the whole, however, the game was a very satisfactory one for both players and spectators. There were no delays, for which the referee, Mr. E. A. Quigley, of Vancouver, deserves some of the credit. He understands the game thoroughly, is a good player himself, and above all is impartial. The players, knowing this, had more confidence, there being no fear of their being ruled off for a mere accident or being allowed to remain on the field when a deliberate foul was committed. The result of this was that there was not a single dispute during the match. Rose Eckardt, F. Cullin, W. E. Ditchburn and Archie Macnaughton did some splendid work on Victoria's home, their combination plays being brilliant and numerous. Jackson also did some good work in close quarters. Pete Bright, as usual, played his position to perfection, being always in close proximity to the ball. D. Patterson did some hard and effective work in the field. The Williams brothers did some very pretty work in the defence field, their cool manner of getting out of close quarters being remarkable. Belfry and Charley Cullin did not lose sight of Cambridge and Ryal, Westminster's star home players, and succeeded time after time in relieving the pressure on the flags. W. Cullin in goal was not called upon to stop many shots, but he had lots of work to do behind the flags, which he did well.

For Westminster the defence put up the best game, Coldwell, the goal keeper, Bob Cheyne, C. Snell and Stuart Campbell doing some very close checking. Archie Mackenzie does not play as good lacrosse as he did a few years ago, but nevertheless he put up a very fair game. P. Peele, H. Taylor and McQuarrie did some fast work in centre, while W. Dalglish, H. J. Peele, Cambridge and Ryal kept Victoria's defence very busy when the ball was in their vicinity.

The first game lasted but eight minutes, but that gave the players an opportunity to do some fast playing. From the face the ball went down to Westminster's flags, where several shots were taken by Eckardt, Macnaughton, Ditchburn and F. Cullin. Cheyne relieved and sent the ball down on Victoria's flags, to have it returned after the visitors' home had made a couple of attempts to shoot, which Victoria's defence did not give them a chance to do. After some combination plays by Victoria's home, F. Cullin secured the rubber and passed to Jackson, who made a quick and effective shot, winning the first game for Victoria.

Victoria started the second game by making an assault on the visitors' flags, Eckardt making a couple of shots, which the defence stopped by crowding before the goal. The ball finally reached Cambridge, who shot on Victoria's goal without effect, the ball glancing from W. Cullin's stick to Ryal, who, taking advantage of an opening, scored the first game for Westminster in eight minutes.

Westminster scored the third game after sixteen minutes' play, during which time the ball passed from one end of the field to the other, with a few hot scrimmages around the flags a both ends. The brullian plays in the game were a long run by Cheyne, the catching of some "sky scrapers by Ditchburn and a splendid check by Belfry, Belfry and W. Cullin were the only players between the flags and Cambridge, who had the ball. Belfry jumped out and neatly took the ball from Cambridge, sending it up the field. After an assault on Westminster's flags by Victoria's home, Mackenzie relieved. Dalglish secured the rubber and passed to H. J. Peel, who scored.

Victoria settled the fourth game in just thirty seconds, the ball remaining in the air from the time it left centre until it passed the flags. From centre it went down to Victoria's goal, was caught by W. Cullin, who passed to F. Cullin the latter after a short run sending a liner that the combined Westminster defence failed to stop.

Without taking the usual ten minutes' rest the teams lined up again. There were a number of scrimmages around both goals, in which both teams worked like Trojans. Time after time Victoria's home shot on Westminster's goal, but the visitors' defence always crowded in in time to save the game. Finally the ball got behind Westminster's flags. Eckardt, who had as usual been hard at work, secured it and tipped it to Ditchburn, who scored.

There was still eighteen minutes to play when the sixth game was called. The visitors tried hard to redeem themselves, Ryal and Cambridge working well together, but Victoria's defence was too strong and cool. Victoria's home also kept the Westminster defence busy, but neither team could score before the whistle blew.

THE RING.

CORBETT'S PLAIN TALK.

New York, Aug. 6.—Jim Corbett stated yesterday that during the past few days certain things have happened that would compel him to take back the statement which he made public the other day that he would be able to fight Jackson in three or four months' time. "I have made many theatrical engagements," said the champion, "which will last well over six months. I can make more money by filling them than by fighting Jackson. All I can gain by meeting and knocking out Peter is the purse of money and outside bet. I am after the dust and I figure on making a big sum by acting. No one can blame me. If I ever got whipped my downward course would probably be rapid, and I would need money then to support myself."

YACHTING.

GOULD'S ADVENTURE.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 4.—Geo. Gould had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday when he met the Vigilant in a steam launch off the spit lightship. Just as Mr. Gould was walking across the plank held between the two vessels the launch gave a sudden lurch and Mr. Gould fell into the sea. He was wearing a mackintosh, which flew over his head, and for a time Mr. Gould's situation was critical. However, he kept his head, and, treading water, threw his arms up, and just as he was sinking succeeded in getting the mackintosh clear of his head. Gasping for breath, he was hauled on board the sloop. Mr. Gould to-day was none the worse for his immersion.

VIGILANT WINS EASILY.

Cowes, Aug. 6.—The Cowes week of racing was commenced this morning with the Royal Legion yacht club's regatta. The Vigilant, Britannia and Satanita started at 10 o'clock this morning in the race for 100 guineas. The course was eastward around the Isle of Wight, outside of the Norman fort and the bell bridge light buoy. The yachts crossed the line as follows: Satanita, 10.00.05; Britannia, 10.00.23; Vigilant, 10.10.10. The start was a luffing match, in which the Satanita had the best of it. The Vigilant quickly improver her position, passing the Britannia and overhauling the Satanita. A good northwest breeze was blowing. At Leland Bay the Vigilant was leading by 1 minute and 35 seconds, when all three boats were becalmed. When they started again the Vigilant still led and won easily, with the Britannia second.

The time of the finish was: Vigilant, 5.01.35; Britannia, 5.12.18.

LAWN TENNIS.

The annual tournament of the Victoria Lawn Tennis club commenced this morning under most favorable auspices. The weather was delightfully hot and the courts in good order. A large number of visitors from Tacoma are here, and nearly all of them are playing. At first the grass courts seem a little bit strange to them, as they are used to clay and asphalt, but no doubt before the week is over they will be very much at home. The best tennis played this morning was the match between Miss Arrowsmith and Mrs. Snow, of Tacoma, which the former won after two fast sets. Mrs. Snow was unfortunate in being drawn at first against Victoria's crack lady player, as otherwise she would have come pretty near the finals, and the score in the second set against Miss Arrowsmith is much more one-sided than were the games.

Mrs. Burton and Miss Kershaw played two hard sets, which the visitor won by 6-5 each time.

The following are the scores of the morning games:

Mrs. Burton and Miss Arrowsmith beat Miss Muriel Goward and Miss Corie Fowell 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Arrowsmith beat Mrs. Snow, 6-2, 6-0.

Miss Bailey beat Miss Beckwith.

Miss Roe beat Mrs. Bramsdon, 6-4, 6-4.

F. S. Bull won by default from A. D. Crease.

G. C. Johnston beat R. Harvey, 6-1, 6-3.

A. C. Elmore and Lieut. Davy beat F. B. Ward and Rae Green, 6-1, 6-0.

In the club handicap J. F. Foulkes won from B. H. T. Drake by two sets out of three.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Victoria cricket club defeated a team from the navy on Saturday, making [illegible] made by the navy in two innings.

A city baseball team defeated a Saanichstown team at the latter place on Saturday.

The yacht club hold thir fourth cruise of the season next Saturday.

ANOTHER CHINESE WAR.

Celestial Lotterymen Invoke the Law Against White Invaders.

There will very likely be an interesting time in Chinatown in the next few weeks. The owners of the Chinese lotteries, looking with jealous eyes upon the lottery run by white men right in the heart of their quarter, have had William Jackson, one of the proprietors, and John McDonlad, one of the employes, summoned for gambling. The cases will be called for hearing in the police court to-morrow morning. The matter has been agitating the Chinese for some time, and it is said that this action followed a series of general meetings of the proprietors of the Chinese lotteries, at which a combination was formed. As retaliation is the first law of war, it is expected that the summoning of every Chinese lottery keeper in Chinatown will speedily follow. The sporting fraternity say the Chinese have killed the goose of the proverb, which laid the golden eggs.

Law Intelligence.

County court is sitting to-day again to-day with Mr. Justice Walkem presiding. In the full court the Wolley v. Lowenburg, Harris & Co. appeal is still being argued. It will probably finished this afternoon and then next after comes Vipond v. the Corporation of Nanaimo.

MURDER ON SEA ISLAND

Prominent and Popular Resident Found Dead in His Bed This Morning.

Robbery is Supposed to Have Been the Object of the Awful Deed.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 6.—(Special)—Mr. McRory, an elder in the Presbyterian church and prominent Oddfellow, was found murdered in bed at Eburne, Sea Island, at nine o'clock this morning. Three guns are missing, and the house has not been examined, so other articles may be missing. McRory was a bachelor, owns 10 acres of land and was well to do. He was foreman of a gang working on the road. When he last attended church he was in good spirits. He was well liked by everybody and was about 45 years of age. His farm, where he was murdered, is near Eburne, Sea Island.

ANNIVERSARIES OBSERVED.

Consecration of Bishop Lemmens and Ordination of Father Brabant Honored.

At St. Andrew's Roman Catholic cathedral yesterday morning, surrounded by all except one of the priests of his diocese, who number fifteen, His Lordship Bishop Lemmens officiated at Pontifical High Mass. It was the sixth anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Vancouver Island, and the services were in honor of the day. In addition to the clergymen present there were 25 altar boys inside the communion rail. The ceremonies were very impressive. Father Stuhl, of Seattle, preached an eloquent sermon on the duties of a bishop in the church and the obedience which his flock owed him. The music by the choir under C. A. Lombard was very good. Mrs. Sheldon, of Portland, rendered an "Ave Maria" in excellent style.

This morning Father Brabant, of Hesquiat, officiated at high mass in honor of the twenty-first anniversary of his ordination. There were large congregations present both days.

Cheap Rates to the East and Return.

The Northern Pacific railway has made a rate of $72.75 to Washington, D. C., and return, on account of the biennial session of the supreme lodge, K. of P., and $66.50 to Pittsburg, Pa., and return for the Grand Army of the Republic encampment.

Tickets good for sixty days from date of sale. A special train, with dining cars and sleepers, will leave Seattle August 18th, running through to Washington, via Pittsburg.

This gives intending passengers a rare opportunity for a cheap trip to all points east and return.
